1. Introduction

This report details the process of creating a high-fidelity, interactive prototype for the official website of the Sri Lanka Bureau of Foreign Employment (SLBFE), accessible at <https://www.slbfe.lk/>. The foundation for this work was established in our initial assignment, where we conducted comprehensive user research to identify significant usability challenges. Our findings from contextual inquiries and heuristic evaluations revealed critical issues across key user groups—including job seekers, recruitment agencies, and SLBFE staff—such as poor navigation, non-responsive design, overwhelming form complexity, and a general lack of visual hierarchy.

Building upon these insights, the primary aim of Assignment 3 is to transition from problem identification to solution generation. The objective is to design a high-mobility prototype that directly addresses the documented usability problems. This prototype will serve as a tangible proposal for a redesigned SLBFE website, focusing on enhancing the user experience (UX) by improving intuitiveness, accessibility, and efficiency. By creating a functional model of the improved interface, we demonstrate how the application of Human-Computer Interaction (HCI) principles can transform a critical public service portal into a more user-centric and effective digital tool.

2. Methodolog

To ensure a structured and effective approach to high-fidelity prototyping, we adopted a multi-stage methodology that builds directly on our previous research findings.

1. Review of Assignment 1 Findings:

- We began by thoroughly reviewing the usability issues, user personas, and contextual inquiry transcripts from Assignment 1. This served as our primary "problem backlog" and ensured that our design decisions were grounded in real user needs and empirical data.

2. Tool Selection:

- For creating the high-fidelity prototype, we selected Figma. Figma is a cloud-based design tool renowned for its powerful prototyping capabilities, real-time collaboration features, and ability to create interactive, near-realistic user interfaces. Its capability to simulate user flows and share a live prototype link aligns perfectly with the project's requirements.

3. Design and Prototyping Process:

- Information Architecture Restructuring: Based on the navigation issues identified (e.g., unclear menus, redundant links), we first reorganized the site's information architecture to create a more logical and intuitive content hierarchy.
- Wireframing: We created low to mid-fidelity wireframes for the key interfaces analyzed in Assignment 1 (e.g., Login, Job Vacancies, Complaint Portal, Agency Search). This step focused on layout, content placement, and user flow without the distraction of visual design.
- High-Fidelity UI Design: We then applied a modern, consistent visual design language to the wireframes. This included defining a cohesive color palette, typography, and UI component library to address the inconsistencies and outdated aesthetics noted in our initial analysis.
- Interactivity and Prototyping: Using Figma's prototyping tools, we linked the designed screens to create a fully interactive prototype. This simulates the core user journeys, such as registering an account, searching for jobs, submitting a complaint, and filtering agency lists, thereby solving the critical usability problems related to navigation and task completion.

4. Testing and Iteration:

- The interactive prototype will be tested internally by simulating the tasks defined in our Assignment 1 scripts. This allows us to validate the proposed solutions and make iterative refinements to the design before final submission.

2. Complaint Submission Form	A few users struggled to find where to start entering personal information; they scrolled past the initial section.	The layout lacked clear step indication or progress separation between complaint type, personal info, and upload sections.	High – Users may abandon form submission if the flow is unclear.	Introduce a step-by-step guided form (multi-section with progress bar and icons). Trade-off: adds slightly more navigation but improves clarity.

3. Complaint Actions/Status View	Some users were unsure which details to enter first (complaint number or passport number) and couldn't easily compare multiple complaint updates.	Lack of input field labeling guidance and timeline grouping made it confusing.	Medium – Information is available but not well structured for quick understanding. Task Description

Name of the Participants	Feature/Task 1 - Agency Search	Feature/Task 2 - Valid Agencies List	Feature/Task 3 - Suspended Agencies List	Feature/Task 4 - User Registration	Note
Job Seeker	Successfully searched for an agency by name.	Found a valid agency but found the table cluttered and hard to read.	Could not understand what "(Contributor Agency)" meant in the status column.	Registered a new account without any issues.	The user was confused by technical jargon in the suspended list.

Name of the Participant	Feature/Task 1 - Agency Search	Feature/Task 2 - Valid Agencies List	Feature/Task 3 - Suspended Agencies List	Feature/Task 4 - User Registration	Note
Foreign Worker	Used the A-Z directory easily to find an agency.	Scrolled through the long list but could not find a 'Search within page' function.	Wanted to know why an agency was suspended but the reason was not provided.	The 'Get Code' step for mobile verification was clear and worked.	The user felt the valid and suspended lists were not mobile-friendly.
HR Officer	The search function was sufficient for quick checks.	Needed to contact multiple agencies; copying phone numbers from the cluttered cell was difficult.	The list was useful, but sorting by suspension date would be helpful.	N/A - Did not test registration as it's not part of their role.	The officer needed more advanced data manipulation features.

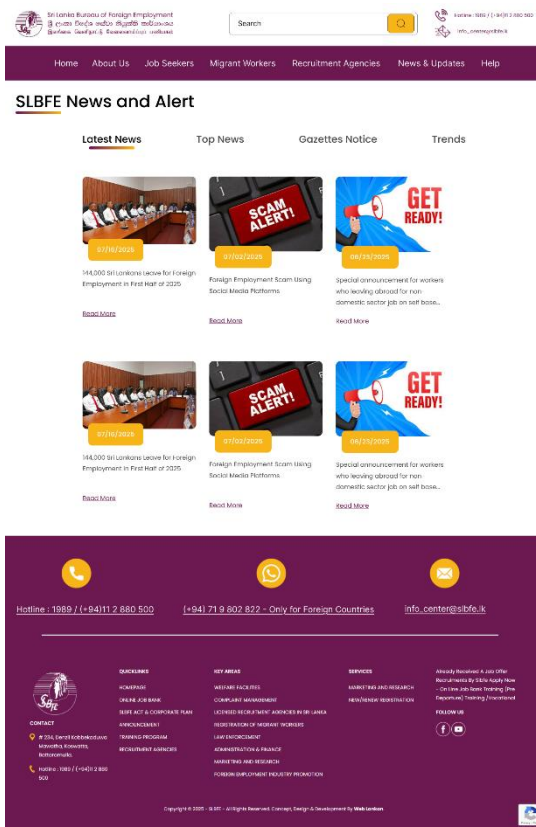

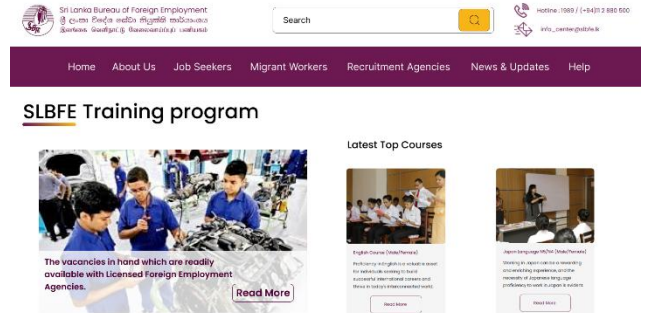

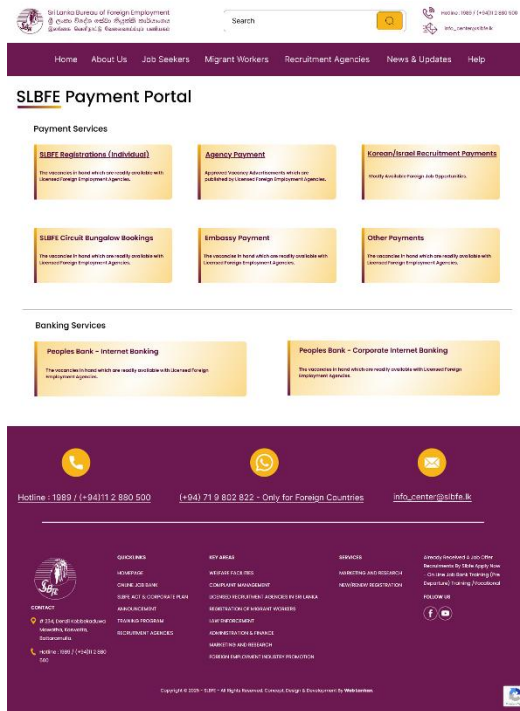

Rating of the Data Identified Based on the Task Description

Prototype screen/UI	User's feedback/problem	Reason for negative feedback	Severity (high/medium/low) and justification	Way(s) to rectify and any tradeoffs
1. Search for Licensed Agencies	Users found the A-Z directory and search box functional but basic.	The search lacks advanced filters (e.g., by district, license type).	Low - The core functionality works, but lacks efficiency for power users.	Add filter dropdowns for District and License Status. Trade-off: A slightly more complex UI for significantly improved utility.
2. Valid Recruitment Agencies List	The table is overcrowded; phone numbers are in one cell without formatting; no search, sort, or pagination.	Poor information design and lack of basic data table features.	High - This makes the data practically unusable for finding specific information among 974 entries, leading to user frustration and task abandonment.	Implement a searchable, sortable, and paginated table. Format phone numbers into a list. Trade-off: Requires more development effort for a fundamentally necessary feature.
3. Suspended/Cancelled Agencies List	Status labels like "- (Contribut Agency)" are cryptic and meaningless to	Use of internal jargon instead of plain language	High - Defeats the purpose of a public list meant for consumer protection and transparency.	Replace jargon with clear statuses (e.g., "Licence users. No explanation for suspension.	(e.g., "Contributed Agency"). Lack of transparency.	Users cannot make informed decisions.	Cancelled," "Temporarily Suspended") . Add a column for "Reason." Trade-off: Requires backend data structure changes to include reasons.

4. Create New Account	The registration form was completed successfully by all test users.	No significant usability issues were reported for this specific form in the tests.	Low - The form is straightforward and performed its intended function without confusion in this test scenario.	No immediate rectification needed based on the provided feedback.
